WORK WITH US.

Senza invocare il nemo proprio in patria. Che non e' proprio il caso. Diro' subito che i parasitti non ebbero al Manzoni le stesse fastose accoglienze del costanzi. Sei l'atto primo-giudicato concordemente

Magnifico--el'atto terzo e quarto

Riscossero-applausi.il second passo' senza infamia e senza lode. La critica-- pur mettendo in rilievo I pregi del lavoro--fece non poche restrizioni sul suo reale valore d'avere concentrato tutto l'interesse del lavoro nel partagonista. e di essermi-plasmandolo per la scena --- ricordato troppo da vicino del matteo canstasirena dei barbaro' di gerolamo Rovetta.

TRANSLATION TO ENGLISH

Merits of the work-made many restrictions on its real artistic value. The main accusation made of me was that of having concentrated all the interest of the work in the protagonist. And of having -shaping him for the scene-Remember too closely by the Mateo Cantasirena dei Barbaro by Gerolamo Rovetta

The Point, and now insisting on another, but directing everyone towards the same objective in order to gain time and proceed with the preparation for the invasion, according to the plan already agreed upon". certainly the most Catholic king seemed, in the remarkable letter, to have surpassed himself; and farnese that sincere farnese. In whom the loyal, true and chivalrous character, the queen and her advisers placed such implicit trust, could not, from then on, not be more ashamed about the course he should adopt, for the day to day, through, thick and fine, and with all the varieties of circumstance and details that; a fertile genius in fiction might suggest, such was the simple rule prescribed by his sovereign, and the rule was implicitly obeyed, and the English sovereign thoroughly deceived. the secret entrusted only to Alexander's faithful bosom was religiously guarded. even the pope was deceived. His holiness proposed to Philip the invasion of England and offered a million to carry out the plan. He very much wanted to be informed if the project was resolved and, if so, when it should be carried out. The king took the pope's million, but refused the difficulties along the way. After some time, the pope again tried to meddle in the matter and again offered the million that Philip had accepted only when necessary; giving him at the same time understand that it was not necessary at that time, because then there were great impediments. "So he has committed to giving me the subsidy, and I'm not committed for the time being." Said Philip, "and I keep mine, which is the most important of all." However, in the end, Farnese did not see his clear path to the consummation of the plan. His army had dwindled terribly, and before he could deal seriously with further matters, it would be necessary to take the city from the floodgates. This would prove, as we have seen, a very arduous undertaking. He complained to Philip about his inadequate supplies, both in men and in money.
